

Bedtime Story for the Little Ones

UNCLE WIGGLY AND THE STARCH.

"UNCLE WIGGLY," said Nurse Jane, Fussy Wussy, the mustache lady housekeeper, to the rabbit gentleman one day, "Uncle Wiggly, you were very kind to me in getting me the coffee grinder and the electric toaster, besides putting up the clothes line for me."

"I don't mention such little things," spoke the bunny uncle, twirling his pink nose like an oyster. "I was just a low down, 'I was a mere pleasure for me to do."

"And a pleasure for me to have you," added Miss Fussy Wussy, as she looked out of the window of the hollow stump bungalow where she lived with Uncle Wiggly. "I was just wondering if you would do something else for me."

"Of course," cried the bunny "What is it?"

"Please go to the store and get me some starch," said the mustache lady. "I need the starch to make my collars and cuffs nice and stiff, so the flies can't sting down them in the summer."

"What starch?" asked Uncle Wiggly, as he went to the store. "I want some of the best starch for Nurse Jane's pillow cases, and some for my collars and cuffs," said the bunny.

"The starch," said the little mustache lady who waited on the store. "Pillows cases are never starched."

"Well, then, let me have some starch for my collars and cuffs," went on Mr. Longears.

"Will you have cold starch or hot starch?" asked the mustache girl.

Uncle Wiggly scratched his pink nose.

"Cold starch," said the bunny.

"Cold starch," said the bunny.

Face Washes.

"FACE washes" is a more general, though not an accurate description of the various toilet waters, lotions and creams that can be occasionally employed to cleanse and soften the skin.

There are times when plain soap and water are not enough to make the complexion clear and smooth. After a long train trip, or a long drive, the skin will be dry and rough from the wind and grime with dust and dirt, and while soap will dissolve most of the dirt, the water will irritate the skin. Something soothing and healing, as well as cleansing, is needed.

Of course there are cleansing creams—an excellent recipe has already been given here—but sometimes a woman hasn't time to stop for a cream, which always takes a few moments to massage in, and sometimes a fairly oily skin will show up shiny for hours after an application of cream. So the various lotions and vinegars, which mix oil and alcohol cleverly enough so one counteracts the other, are better to use.

Plain cucumber juice is unexcelled as a bleach and as a cleanser. Two parts cucumber juice, one part pure alcohol make a simple face lotion. Then there is a creamy fluid called Virginia milk or "Lait Virginia," possibly because it looks so fine and pure. It is made by mixing tincture of benzoin 4 drachms tincture of vanilla 4 drachms and adding to this very slowly to prevent curdling, three pints of triple rose water.

Questions and Answers. Marie: If you live back in the country and intend coming to the city for the rest of the winter, I think it would be best to wait till you get here, and then buy your clothes. I can't really say which is best—to have clothes made by a dressmaker or to buy them ready made. Of course, if you have certain styles in mind that you want to copy, and your dressmaker is expert, you can possibly get them cheaper that way, yet ready made dresses, especially now that special sales are being given, are a great temptation. Suits are best ready made or tailored to order. You would have to have a great deal of skill to make a suit at home and not have it look homemade.

The thing you'll find dark blue a good choice. Blue is good for any occasion where you can wear a tailored suit. Get a black satin dress, too, these are no practical with a plain Georgie collar they are tailored with a fancy one, they are dressy—dull black dresses with gray suede tops would go with either dress or suit. A taffeta or all feather hat would be better than a velvet one this late in the season.

Careless Use of Soap Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mildified coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mildified coconut oil at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Adv.

TRAVELETTE

ZUNI RUNNERS.

A FEW weeks ago, the tribe of the Zunis held their great annual ceremonial feasts and dances at their pueblo in western New Mexico. For almost the first time, a number of tourists penetrated the 40 miles that lie between the pueblo and the railroad to witness the ceremonies, and as a result the Zunis are beginning to be known to fame. Long familiar to students of ethnology, their peculiar talents are quite unknown to the general public.

The Zuni Indians are probably the greatest runners the world has ever known. Their feats in this direction are such that any man who would try to recount them all would inevitably lose his reputation for veracity. But in looking at the lean brown boy who will run down a wild horse or a deer and hardly lose his breath over it, one must remember that the lad has not only been trained to run from the time he could first stand, but his training really began a thousand years ago. He comes of a tribe that has specialized in running since long before Columbus was born.

Most of the southwestern Indians are noted as "horse Indians," the Navajos, the Apaches, and the Navajos. The Zuni never cared for horses. They preferred their own legs. The young men of the tribe can outrun any horse, if the distance be only long enough. When the Indians were popular a few years ago, an American took two Zunis and entered them in a 20 mile race in a little southwestern city. They passed their white competitors so often on a half mile circular track, that all of the white men running since long before the race was half over. The Indians, running against time, just failed to break the world's record for the distance, to the great disappointment of their American manager. "The distance is too short," he said "if it was 40 miles, they would break it, and in a 60 mile run, there's nobody in the world could stay near them." At which his friends laughed unbelievably, but he was telling something not far from the truth, at worst.

One method the Zuni practice for keeping in trim is their tribal sport, which was witnessed for the first time by a number of Americans at the recent ceremonies. This game is known as "kick-the-stick" and is a sort of hockey played with the bare feet. The stick is a bit of wood three or four inches long, and each team tries to kick it down a long course to a goal. So expert are the players and so fast do they travel, that a number of spectators were out of their horses trying to keep up with the game.

BE REASONABLE.

MRS. KATZINBACK had been poking about the automobile show all afternoon, and finally she approached Ed Ibbie, manager of the Bunions car display.

"I want a car," she explained, "and it seems to me the Bunion display has the best assortment of colors. Now if you can show me a nice one reasonable enough—"

"No Bunion car is allowed to leave the factory until it is perfectly reasonable," replied Ed Ibbie. "Now, how about this one—a nice horizon pink nine seater, with a self stopper and an extra tire, only $12,000?"

"Oh, I couldn't think of paying that much," said Mrs. Katzinback. "Then you must think of it," said Ed Ibbie heartily. "Now here's a dandy—a midsize purple four seater, with detachable spark plug and German silver soup heater, for one $10,000. Well, of course, that's much more reasonable," agreed Mrs. Katzinback, "but $10 is too."

"It is, exactly," nodded Ed Ibbie brightly. "Perhaps this one, then—a cigarband scarlet two seater with pongee tires, only $225." "That's the reasonablest yet," conceded Mrs. Katzinback, "but when I think that $225 would almost buy out an egg store, I can't buy it."

And she gave him $2.30 for a yellow kiddie car for her little boy.
